

RADDAR N°3 press release March 2022

RADDAR N°3 now available

The third issue of RADDAR, the annual review of design research co-edited by mudac and T&P Work UNit, is now available. After having explored function and interior design, this new issue tackles the politics of design.

Historical Indochina, contemporary Lebanon, American odysseys and African approaches, inclusive typographic perspectives and multinational practices... Through a series of scientific articles, each author offers to tackle a precise angle or a chosen topic, thus dealing with burning issues that run through our societies.

RADDAR N°3 explores practices that raise questions, from a fundamental critique of universalism to colonial policies, and from close observation of co-design approaches to the exploitative observations of designers themselves. RADDAR N°3 invites new readerships and opens up to other dimensions.

RADDAR is the first French-Swiss annual review dedicated to design research, designed by Swiss graphic designers Julien Mercier, Rebecca Metzger and Pauline Piguet. The coexistence of the two languages creates a bridge between French and English-speaking research and enables young and experienced researchers alike to express themselves on themes of interest in design theory.

The scientific direction of this third issue of RADDAR has been entrusted to Danah Abdulla, Programme Director of the Graphic Design Department at the Colleges of Arts Camberwell, Chelsea and Wimbledon (University of the Arts London).

Featuring texts by Judy Attfield, Bye Bye Binary, Ludovic Duhem, Catherine Geel, Elise Goutagny, Matthew Kiem, Nolwenn Maude, Landé Pratt, Kiersten Thamm, a cover by Studio Safar and a joint interview with Ernesto Oroza and Olivier Peyricot, conducted by Emanuele Quinz.

RADDAR N°3 is now on sale online, for CHF 35/EUR 33. Interested readers can now browse the contents of this issue and order their copy at mudac.ch/raddar.
